GREENSBORO TELEGRAM.

VOL. VII. NO. 43. GREENSBORO, N. C., TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1900. Price Five Cent

MORE OF MR. GRAY'S REPORT.

THE SOURCE OF SUPPLY CONSIDERED

Must Take Into Account the Dry Weather When the Flow Would be Low—As the Territory Around North Buffalo is Fast Settling Up There Will Soon be Pollution in the Water—Greensboro in 1930.

Below we publish another section of Engineer Gray's report on the water works question:

SOURCES OF SUPPLY CONSIDERED.

The four sources of supply for the city of Greensboro which have been considered are as follows: North Buffalo creek, the present source of supply; South Buffalo creek, at or near where Ashe street crosses the creek, also at the junction of Ryan creek with South Buffalo creek, three-quarters of a mile below Ashe street crossing, and Reedy Fork creek about eight miles from the city.

The North Buffalo creek, at the present pumping station, drains an era of ten square miles, and as there are no extended opportunities for providing storage reservoirs on this creek, the yield or run-off will have to be considered almost, if not entirely, upon the natural flow of the stream.

There is, however, a location on a small tributary to North Buffalo creek below the terra cotta works, where a small storage reservoir, holding perhaps twenty to twenty-five million gallons, could be built, if it should be decided to use the present source of supply permanently, but it is doubtful whether the reservoir if built would prove of much practical value.

North Buffalo creek was gauged by your city engineer in November of 1899, and was found to flow at the rate of 1,762,560 gallons per 24 hours, or nearly 11 per cent. of the combined rainfall for October and November.

North Buffalo creek drains through a portion of the country that is rapidly building up, and the stream will probably BECOME MORE OR LESS POLLUTED IN THE COURSE OF TIME. The analysis shows the water now to be slightly POLLUTED but not to any material extent.

Heavy rains cause the water to be very roily and muddy, due to the nature of the soil on which they fall, but this can readily be removed by sedimentation and filtration.

South Buffalo creek where Ashe street crosses the stream drains 14½ square miles, or nearly 50 per cent. more drainage area than that of the North Buffalo creek, and with proper protection from pollutions, is otherwise better adapted for a water supply As there does not appear to be any good locations for storage reservoirs on this stream, it will be necessary to depend, as in the North Buffalo creek water shed, upon the natural flow of the stream for furnishing the required amount of water.

The South Buffalo creek was gauged at about the same time as the North Buffalo, and found to flow at the rate of 2,764,800 gallons per 24 hours, or upwards of 50 per cent. more than was found flowing in the North Buffalo, showing that the percentage of rainfall running off was nearly 12 per cent. of the amount that fell in October and November, or about one per cent. greater per square mile than the North Buffalo water shed.

The water from the South Buffalo creek does not appear to be as roily and muddy during heavy rains as the North Buffalo creek, as was clearly indicated during the visit of my assistant there in February, at which time a heavy rain had just occurred.

About three fourths of a mile below where Ashe street crosses the South Buffalo creek, a small stream called Ryan creek, estimated to drain an area equal to one fourth that of South Buffalo creek, or possibly 4 square miles, comes in and forms a junction with the former creek.

By locating a pumping station at or near the junction of these two creeks, a larger quantity of water would be available than would be from South Buffalo creek alone. The cost of building and equipping a pumping station at this junction would be practically the same as that at the Ashe street crossing, but the force main would require extending, and a road would need to be built for the purpose of hauling fuel; besides, the consumption of coal for pumping would be slightly more, on account of the

HARNESSING WATER POWER.

Power for Lighting and Other Purposes to be Conveyed to Fayetteville by Electricity.

The Fayetteville correspondent of the Charlotte Observer has the following to say of an enterprise in which a Greenboro gentleman is interested:

"The Observer correspondent learns from Mr. W. M. Morgan, of this city, and Capt. R. P. Gray, of Greensboro, who is registered at the Hotel Lafayette, both princial stockholders in the Cape Fear Electrical Power Company, that they have every reason to be satisfied with the progress of their enterprise, though the extensive engineering and across country surveying have rendered it almost as formidable an undertaking as the construction of a railroad. It may be accepted, however, as an assured fact that the water power at Buck Horn will be eventually transmitted by electricity to Fayetteville for running its factories and foundries and lighting its streets, and that the benefits to our industrial wealth will be almost incalculable."

SITUATION NEARLY UNCHANGED

CLAIMING SIXTY PER CENT AT WORK

At Scranton the Situation is Unchanged—In the Reading Vicinity the Strike is Spreading—Operators Say in the Whole Strike Sixty Per Cent. are at Work.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Reading, Pa., Sept. 18.—Reports up to noon from the Dauphin county line to Shamokin, embracing all the Reading company's 38 collieries and a few of the Pennsylvania railroad's colliers, show some changes in the situation, but no disorder. Thirty-six collieries in Reading are working. An attempt was made this morning by three collieries to resume, but they failed, fewer men reporting than yesterday. The company then announced that the three collieries would be closed indefinitely until after the strike is settled.

An attempt to start the mineral and union collieries at Shamokin this morning failed. The strikers appear to have joined in the Reading district.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Scranton, Sept. 18—Today finds the strike situation among forty-three thousand miners in the Lackawanna region practically unchanged from yesterday, when a complete tie up of the region was reported.

SIXTY PER CENT. AT WORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 18.—Coal operators declared this morning that nearly sixty per cent. of the mine workers of the entire coal fields were at work.

Officers Encounter Pirates.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Sept. 18.—Early this morning a tugboat, with fifteen police officers, had a terrific encounter with river pirates on Staten Island, below the B & O. bridge. Five of the pirates were arrested, two were drowned and one was seriously wounded.

Five Men Drowned in New York.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Sept. 28—The tug America was run into off Houston street this morning and cut in two by the Atlantic transport liner Minehaha. The men on the tug did not have time to cry out and five were drowned.

Dr. Alderman in Town.

D. Edwin A. Alderman, late president of the University of North Carolina, spent last night in the city on his return from the western part of the State. He left this morning for Raleigh and will go from there to Chapel Hill to spend a few days. He stated to The Telegrame that he would leave North Carolina about the 25th inst. to assume the presidency of Tulane University.

Mr. W. S. Hill, who went to Philadelphia a few days ago to have his eyes treated, is very much improved.

ARE THERE DEGREES IN HELL?

REV. MR. MARTIN DISCUSSES THEM.

The Advantage Which Sodom Had Over Capernaeum—A Like Disadvantage of the Sinner Who Has More Light Than His Neighbor—God Is Not an Unjust God, But One Who Punishes Exactly According to Deserts—He Is a God of Wrath, and Who Would Have Him to Be Otherwise?

The meeting at the West Washington Street church last night was attended by a smilarly large concourse to those which assembled Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Martin is a very interesting talker, his sermons being full of incidents and illustrations which go further than any other one thing to popularize sermons with the average congregation. Then, this style of preaching has a strong point in the fact that we never quite outgrow our childish love of stories. A real happening, used as an illustration, is worth more to drive a thought home than any amount of abstract elaboration.

"Hell" was the subject last night. This sermon is naturally a companion piece to those of Sunday on "Heaven." As in Heaven, says Mr. Martin, there are degrees, so also are there degrees in hell. The lesson was taken from Christ's farewell to Capernaeum, Capernaeum, exalted unto heaven, which shall be brought down to hell. The Sodomite will be punished of course, but not like him of Capernaeum, exalted by the very presence of Christ himself. A Hottentot kills a man. His lights were few; he barely recognized that it was wrong. A negro in America who has been a slave, reared in ignorance and superstition, also kills one. His opportunity was better, his punishment greater. But when the white man reared in a a christian home, enjoying all the advantages of culture and refinement becomes a brute and kills a man, his sin is manifold greater and a just God will make his punishment fitted for the sin. God is just and will punish no man one whit more than his sin merits. Hell is not a refining influence. He that is sinful remains sinful.

God is a God of wrath—just wrath. Who would have him otherwise? Down in Georgia a family circle sits at table, the mother at the head, the father at the foot, an eight-year-old daughter on one side, a two-year-old child on the other. A stealthy brute enters the house, and in one moment cleaves the father's head with an axe, stabs the daughter, hurls the child's brains out against the floor, and leaves the mother upon the floor in her own blood with villian finger marks upon her throat. Shall not God in wrath avenge that awful deed? In a cigar store a crowd of worldly men—society men—tell of their deeds. One man boasts that he has gained the affection of scores of confiding girls and—ruined them. Say not that there is not a just God of wrath to punish that wretch!

No one is asked to go up to be prayed for. Simply if one has trusted Christ he should confess him and then, at the proper time, connect himself with God's people, whichever company of them he prefers.

A THREE-YEAR-OLD'S TRIP.

Parents of a Little Fellow Leave Him on the Winston Train.

The Sentinel has the following to say of the trip of a three-year-old boy alone from Greensboro to Winston:

"A three-year-old boy was brought to Winston from Greensboro last night. The little fellow was left on the seat asleep by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pleasants, who got off the train at Guilford College.

"The parents reside near the College and went to Greensboro yesterday morning, spending the day with friends and returning last night. They were accompanied by their four children. When the train stopped at Guilford College station the father, mother and three children got off. The father thought the mother had the baby boy and the mother was of the opinion that the father was looking after him. The child was not missed until after the train had left. They were two anxious parents for a time. A telegram was sent to Winston. Passengers on the train saw the child, but no one knew whose it was.

"The telegram from the father explained matters, and the child was carried to the home of its uncle, Maj. J. R. Pleasants, where it spent the night. It was carried from the train asleep. The little fellow was sent home this morning.

A SPLENDID CONCERT.

Gate City Band Furnished Delightful Entertainment Last Night.

The concert given by the Gate City Band last night, under the leadership of Mr. James Dilworth, was excellent and should have been enjoyed by a larger audience. While the music was of a high standard, it was such as could be appreciated by ordinary mortals, and its production was most creditable to the band. The two solos—baritone and trombone—were especially good.

Mr. J. G. Fowler, the manager, promises that the next concert shall be even better than last night's.

The Gate City Band furnishes splendid music and deserves the hearty support of the people of Greensboro. This it has not been receiving. The organization is a credit to the Gate City.

IT WILL BE A GREAT SUCCESS.

SOMETHING MORE ABOUT OUR FAIR.

Preparations Progressing Satisfactorily—Everything Will be in Readiness by the 25th—Trainer Ewalt Jogging His Horses on the Track—Full Exhibits and Up-to-Date Attractions—There Will be no Lack of Amusements—Dates of Other Fairs.

Preparations for the Fair are progressing most satisfactorily. By September 25th it is thought everything will be in readiness. Twenty-five or thirty stalls are now ready for occupancy and the exhibit hall will soon be completed. The grand stand is nearing completion. The work of building a light fence around the race track was begun today.

Trainer Ewalt has moved his stock from Vanstory's race track to the Fair grounds and is now jogging his horses on the track. He has seven horses, all of which are splendid animals. They will be entered for the races during Fair week.

A number of inquiries are being received from horsemen and prospective exhibitors. The exhibits will be full and complete in every department, while the horse racing is confidently expected to be the best, taken as a whole, ever seen in North Carolina.

Secretary Walsh stopped from his mass of correspondence long enough today to say, with a smile of satisfaction on his face, "Yes, the Fair is going to be a big success. The indications are that the crowds will be large and the exhibits of every character unsurpassed."

Mr. Garland Daniel, who, with Mr. J. H West, has charge of the attractions, says there will be no lack of amusements for the visitors. "People who go to fairs," said Mr. Daniel today, "expect to see something more than horse racing, pumpkins, gourds, pigs, etc., and we are determined that they shall not be disappointed in this instance. We are receiving communications from quite a number of people who are desirous of securing concessions and privileges at the Fair, and we believe we will have a variety of amusements that have never been equalled at any fair in North Carolina."

* * * *

The Central Carolina Fair is the first of the regular course of fairs in this State, following the Norfolk fair and the Danville carnival. Other North Carolina fairs will be held on the following dates:

Burlington, October 15th to 20th.
Raleigh, October 22nd to 27th.
Winston-Salem, October 29th to November 3rd.
Weldon, October 30th to November 2nd.
Newberne, November 12th to 17th.
Mount Holy, November 18th to 20th.
Fayetteville, November 15th to 20th.

An informal meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. It is called for the purpose of discussing the waterworks question.

SIMMONS WRITES THE PEOPLE

STATES HIS WORK AND POSITION

He Denies that Senator Vance Opposed Him on Personal Grounds—Altogether a Poor Man, but Has Given Largely To the Democratic Cause—All His Property Mortgaged—Represents no Corporation, Did no Lobying, but Has Gone Against the Southern Railway Often.

Special to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Sept. 18.—Mr. F. M. Simmons, candidate for the nomination for Senator, last night gave out the following letter, replying to one from J. D. Allen, of Falls, N. C.:

I am in receipt of your recent favor, in which you say that it is being charged against me, as an aspirant for the Senate.

First, that Senator Vance opposed my confirmation as collector upon grounds derogratory to my personal character.

Second, that I am charged with being a secret agent of the Southern Railway Company, and that it and other corporations have been, and are now paying me large sums of money to protect their interests as a lobbyist and otherwise, and you express the opinion, in which I concur, that as I am a candidate for their suffrage, the people are entitled to know the facts with reference to these charges.

In reply, I beg to say that Senator Vance's opposition to my confirmation was not based upon personal grounds and no charge against my personal character was made in connection with that matter. At the time of my appointment as collector, Senator Vance, together with the other Senator and all the Democratic Congressmen from North Carolina, favored me. The subsequent opposition of Senator Vance to my confirmation arose out of complications connected with the appointment of the collector for the Western District of North Carolina. The records of the Senate and the delegation in Congress from this State at that time will bear out these statements.

With reference to the second charge to which you refer, I beg to say that it is not true that I am attorney or agent, either secret or otherwise, of the Southern Railroad. I have never appeared for that railroad in any capacity. It has never paid me a cent of money in my life, except a contribution made to me as chairman of the committe in 1898, which was spent for the benefit of the party. On the contrary, I have appeared and am appearing against it in many suits. During the last three years, since I commenced to practice law in Raleigh, I have been of counsel in recovering a number of judgments against it, one of them for as much as sixty-three hundred dollars, and I now appear of counsel in quite a number of cases against it, in which my clients claim damages for from thirty to forty thousand dollars. I am also of counsel against it in the tax assessment cases.

It is not true that I am, or have at any time been, a secret agent or attorney for any corporation or person, nor that I am a lobbyist, nor that I have at any time been in receipt of any personal income from any source whatever except as comes legitimately to any North Carolina lawyer enjoying a moderate practice. I neither lobbied in the last Legislature nor discussed with its members subjects connected with their duties not pertaining to general legislation, such as the constitutional amendment, the election law, etc. I am sure no member of the Legislature of 1899 will dispute this statement.

During the last three years, since I have been living in Raleigh, my whole income from all sources has been barely sufficient to support my family, although we live economically.

My entire estate, including property belonging to my wife, would not probably sell for more than seventeen or eighteen thousand dollars, and it is encumbered by unpaid mortgages of over three years standing for eleven thousand dollars. Even my home is mortgaged for about half its purchase money.

I do my banking business with the Citizen's National Bank of this city, and its books will show I have not had to my personal credit at any one time during the last two years as much as one thousand dollars.

When the campaign of this year

MURDER IN RALEIGH LAST NIGHT

NEGRO SHOOTS WOMAN AND ESCAPES

Most Cold-blooded Murder—More Negroes Going North—Supreme Court to Examine Applicants to Practice Law—Cost $22 Hospital Complete.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

Raleigh, Sept. 18 —There was a cold-blooded murder here Monday night, which causes quite a stir among the negroes. A negro man known as "Boots" Brown, aged about 25, and married, living in one of the two negro wards, went into the other negro ward, called Sarah Davis, wife of John Davis, to her gate and shot her. The Davis woman was in the porch of the little home, only four feet from the gate, talking to a negro man and woman. Brown came up, called her, and as she stood at the gate, shot her in the mouth. She turned to run into the house and on the instant he shot her in the back. She ran through the house, fell in her mother's room, and died in a minute. The house is in a lane. The murderer ran fifty yards, to the end of the lane, fired twice more, threw off his coat and fled westward A negro preacher saw the shooting. So did many others. The pursuit of the negro was poorly managed. The other negroes were evidently afraid of him. They said today that if they had caught him they would have lynched him. Yet there are not a few of them who would have hidden, sheltered and fed him, red-handed murderer as he is. A negro said as much and gave as a reason, "Just because he is a nigger." The murdered woman's husband is in Norfolk. They were married 18 months ago and some months ago separated. Last week her husband came here from Norfolk, that paradise of North Carolina negro toughs, they were reconciled, and she was to have gone to Norfolk next Monday.

It was said that there was some check in the movement of negroes northbound, but today in big letters on the bulletin board of an employment agency here were the words "Five hundred negro men wanted to go north."

E. J. Justice of Marion and John T. Perkins of Morganton were here today on their way to Beaufort to fish and hunt. They were talking about the Senatorial fight (something about which every body talks, by the way, and the one thing which will lend gaiety to the National campaign) and Perkins remarked that in his section and county the politicians were for Carr and the people for Simmons.

The "Chosen Friends," an insurance association, is said by the commission of insurance to be doing business in this State without license.

The Supreme Court will meet September 24th, at 10 o'clock a. m., to examine applicants for license to practice law. Those desiring to stand the examination are registered in the order in which their applications are received. Under the rules of the court they must be at least 21 years of age, must have read law at least 12 months and must also have read the prescribed course or its equivalent. If, however, the applicant becomes of age before the next term of the court he will be examined, but his license, if granted, will not be issued to him until he becomes of age. Applicants are known to the court by their number, not by their names. The license tax due the State is $20 and the amount due the printers for the parchment certificate is $2; making it necessary to deposit $22 before they are permitted to be examined.

The State charters the Edgemoor Land Company, of Durham, capital $50,000, stockholders, J. S. Carr, J. S. Carr, Jr., and T. M. Gorman.

The hospital at the Soldiers' Home here is now complete, with the exception of the plumbing. The persons who have inspected the building are greatly pleased with it, as being roomy, well arranged and exactly what has long been needed. The veterans are well pleased with it. The home stands on the site of the old Pettigrew hospital. The latter was established in June, 1860, by the late Dr. E. Burke Haywood, of Raleigh, and Jacob S. Allen tells me it was the first regular hospital in the Confederate States.

CHAIRMAN SIMMONS TALKS.

THE STATE IS SOLID FOR BRYAN.

Democratic Headquarters Have Been Opened and an Aggressive Campaign Will be Waged—Great Quantities of Literature and a Large Number of Speakers Will be Sent Out—Good Prospects of a Solid Democratic Delegation in Congress—The Chairman Declines to Discuss the Senatorial Campaign.

Hon. F. M. Simmons, chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, spent last night in the city. When seen at the Guilford by a representative of The Telegram he talked freely and interestingly of political matters in general.

Headquarters have been opened in Raleigh and arrangements are now being made for the appointment of campaign speakers, etc. "We did not think it best," said Mr. Simmons, "to start the National campaign in North Carolina too early, for the reason that in many parts of the State the people are busy with their crops and other work. In addition to this, we thought it best to allow some time to elapse after the State election before we begun work for Bryan and Stevenson, especially since we are dependent principally upon the speakers of the late campaign to carry forward the work of the present. However, we are now corresponding with the various county chairmen and arranging for a schedule of appointments reaching up to the day of the November election. The appointments will be made when we hear from all the chairmen."

Continuing, Mr. Simmons said: "We begin this week sending out literature from headquarters. We have been delayed in this work longer than we wished, on account of a failure to receive supplies from the National Committee earlier. A great deal of literature will be sent out. The preliminary work we are now doing will be followed by more of the same kind and a large number of speakers. Between October 1st and 10th I hope to have speakers out in every section of the State. Later on in the month we will have several men of National reputation with us. I am now arranging for them through the National Committee.

"The decision of the State Committee to appoint sub-electors in all the counties will, I think, aid us a great deal," said Mr. Simmons. "The appointments will be made through the county committees, the most suitable men, when available, being selected for the work. The fact that there will be no county candidates in the field makes this part of the campaign work almost necessary. This course was never pursued before, except in the Tilden campaign, when it proved very helpful."

Touching the outlook in the Congressional districts, the State Chairman said the prospects were that North Carolina would send a full delegation to Congress this year." The only two districts in which there is any doubt," he said, "are the Eighth and Ninth, and we are counting on these. In the Eighth the joint canvass between Messrs. Crawford and Moody is progressing most satisfactorily to our people. Mr. Crawford is making a splendid fight, and I have information that leads me to believe that he will be elected. Mr. Buxton will begin his campaign in the Ninth district within the next few days. The Democrats of the district are united and determined."

Mr. Simmons believes Mr. Joyce was nominated by the Republicans of this district either with a view to taking him down later on or in the hope of lulling the Democrats to sleep. If the former is true, he believes Mr. Joyce will be replaced by some candidate acceptable to the gold Democrats. It is known that some Republicans have advocated this course.

"There is not the shadow of a doubt that Bryan and Stevenson will receive the electoral vote of North Carolina," said Mr. Simmons. "The fusion Populists will generally vote for McKinley; in fact, these people are now the rankest Republicans in the State. Fortunately their number is too small to jeopardize the result. No, I am not in a position to make an estimate of the majority by which we will carry the State; it is too early in the campaign for that, but you can put it down that North Carolina will go for Brayn and Stevenson."

* * * *

Mr. Simmons would not discuss the Senatorial contest further than to say that he believed he would receive a majority of the votes in the primary. This belief is based on information he had received from all parts of the State. The East, he thinks, is practically solid for him, while the West will give him a big vote. He said his campaign was being managed by his friends.

It appears that the lifetime of the mosquito is three months. Mosquitoes have been kept alive in captivity for 80 days. It is said that the ordinary minnow, which feeds upon the larvae of mosquitoes, is highly efficient as a means for keeping down their numbers.

A nonfreezing liquid is often needed as for breaks of certain kinds for artillery and other uses. Glycerin and alcohol being somewhat expensive, a 28 per cent. solution of chloride of calcium is recommended, the cost of this being slight, while it remains unchanged at 25 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, and does not attack metals.

The method of making sheet lead for tea packing in Formosa is most interesting. The lead is brought from Australia in pigs, and after being melted is poured between two large tiles, the required degree of thickness for the sheet being obtained by pressure of the feet. The sheet is afterwards trimmed to suitable sizes and shapes for soldering and is used for packing.

The protection of beaches along the New England coast is being successfully accomplished by the "groyne system." These "groynes" consist of a series of posts planted firmly in the sand, with close planks extending from post to post. The "groyne" is constructed at right angles to the beach, and its position prevents the waves acting on it injuriously. Sand is intercepted by the planking, rapidly forming a new beach and preventing erosion.

RUDE, BUT CONVINCING.

Peter Bennett's Eloquence and the Effect It Had Upon the Jury.

Burnham's Leading in Law gives an amusing account of the trial of a case wherein a doctor sued to recover his fee. The case was tried in Georgia many years ago. Robert Toombs appeared for the plaintiff and Alexander H. Stephens for the defendant. When the evidence had closed Mr. Stephens told his client, the defendant, that the plaintiff had made out his case, and, as there was no offset, it was useless to proceed further, and the best thing the defendant could do was to pay the doctor's claim. The defendant, who was named Peter Bennett, scorned this advice and indignantly replied that he had hired Mr. Stephens to speak for him, and he must say something. Mr. Stephens answered that there was nothing to say; that if Peter thought he could say anyting he might address the jury himself, whereupon Peter delivered himself as follows: "Gentlemen of the jury, you and me is plain farmers, and if we don't stick together these 'ere lawyers and doctors will jis skin and bury us. This 'ere doctor was a new doctor and I went fur him to come and doctor my wife's sore leg. He come and he put some salve truck to it and some rags, but never done it a bit er good. I don't believe he is no doctor nohow. There is doctors as is doctors, but this 'ere man don't yearn his money, and if you send fur him as Miss Sal Atkins did fur a nigger boy as was wuth $1,000, he jis kills him and wants pay for it!"

"I don't!" thundered the doctor.

"Did yer cure that nigger?" asked Peter. The doctor was silent and Peter proceeded:

"As I was sayin', gintilmin, we farmers, when we sells our cotton, has got ter giv vally for the money we asks, and doctors ain't none too good to be put to the same rule. And I don't believe this 'ere man is no doctor nohow."

"Look at my diploma, if you think I'm no doctor," again interposed the plaintiff.

"His 'di-piplo-mu.' Gintilmin, that is a big word for a printed sheepskin. It don't make no doctor uv the sheep as fust wore it, nor uv the man whut now totes it. * * * Ask his patients if he's a doctor, gintilmin. But how kin yer? Where is Miss Beaseley's man Sam? Miss Peak's woman Sarah wus tended by him and her funeral was app'inted and he had the corpse ready. Where is that likely Bill, as belonged to Mr. Mitchell? Where is that baby girl of Harry Stevens'? She are gone whur doctors cease from troublin' and the infants is at rest.

"Gintilmin, he has et chicken enough at my house to pay fur his salve, and I furnished the rags and I don't s'pose he charged fur makin' her wuss."

The defendant proceeded along this line at some length, and, despite Mr. Toombs' logical statement of the case in reply, Peter Bennett won.

CHILDREN IN JAPAN.

Boys in That Charming Land Become of Age at Fifteen and Are Then Given a New Name.

In St. Nicholas there is a paper on "The Little Japanese at Home," by Ida Tigner Hodnett. Miss Hodnett says, in describing the growing up of a boy:

When he is three years old he begins to wear the obi, a girdle three inches wide, which confines the kimono, a loose sort of garment, and the main part of the Japanese national dress for both children and grown people. The putting on of the obi is the occasion of another family feast; and a very important garment it is, for it corresponds to pockets in an American boy's first trousers. The front part of the kimono, above the obi, is also used as a pocket; and the long, wide sleeves, sewed up at the lower end, make two very big ones.

When 15 years old the boy becomes of age, and a third family festival occurs. Another name is given him and his hair is allowed to grow all over the head, like a man's. Previous to this time the head is shaved so as to allow the hair to grow only in spots or tufts, the place of the tufts varying up to the age of ten, when the crown only is shaved. At the festival celebrating his majority the manner of friends and relatives changes toward him, and, while the day before he was still addressed as a child, now he is addressed in the ceremonious forms required by Japanese etiquette. The title of respect, san, is henceforth affixed to his name, even by those nearest and dearest. These titles, san, sama, always follow the name, and are never prefixed, as with our "Mr." For example, a boy whose name is Kiyoshi will be called Kiyoshi-san. In his responses to the kind speeches made to him the boy shows that he understands the new honors that have come upon him, and that he is now ready to apply himself to the serious business of life.

It used to be a great thing to be born a samurai (sah-moo-ri) boy baby in

HOW THE BABY IS CARRIED.

Japan. The samurai were soldiers and scholars, and were entirely apart from and above the ordinary people. They could not engage in any business, nor could they marry into another class. This has all been changed since the Japanese revolution of 1867-68. The people are now divided into two large classes—the heimin (ha-meen), or commoners, the shizoku (shee-zo-koo), or gentry—and all have equal rights under the law. The average boy's success in life depends upon his own abilities, and the use he makes of the teaching he may have.

The first thing the samurai baby needed after he was put in his nurse's arms was a sword. Rather a queer thing for a baby to have, but then this baby was a samurai! No matter if his tiny hand could not grasp the handle, his nurse carried it for him; and when the obi became a part of his dress the sword was fastened to it and hung by his side. To be sure, it was a wooden sword, but what of that? It was the badge of his rank, and must go wherever he did all day long, and when he went to bed it was laid close by. "The sword is the soul of the samurai" is an old Japanese saying, and it was thus early fastened to his side that he might become used to grasping it from infancy.

When our young samurai reached the age of seven it was a day of great rejoicing. At the family festival two real metal swords were fastened to the obi, one on each side. The edges, however, were blunt, and accidents were further guarded against by having the swords so fastened in their sheaths that the young swordsman could not draw them out. These were now his constant companions until, at the age of 15, the weapons handed down in his family took their place.

The Parachute Saved Him.

Sometimes a man seems to have been born under a lucky star, like the aeronaut who recently made an ascension at Niagara Falls. When 5,000 feet up in the air, the balloon exploded. The man was hanging by his toes from a trapeze at the time, and there did not seem to be one chance in a thousand for his life; but he quickly drew himself up, and while the collapsed bag was rushing downward at a terrific rate, managed to detach his parachute and get clear of the balloon. The parachute soon slowed up, and the lucky aeronaut landed without a scratch.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

is a very pleasant, invigorating tonic drink, acting as a mild and gentle but very efficacious laxative. It cures dyspepsia and all other forms of indigestion by striking at the root of them. It commences with the stomach and stimulates its muscular actions while it relieves acidity and stops the fermentation of food which usually attends a weakened stomach. The bowels are helped to do their work and the liver and the kidneys and the spleen get a lift. Abbey's Salt is made from the salts extracted from the juices of fresh fruits and a teaspoonful in a glass of water night and morning will work wonders.

Sold by most druggists, or sent by mail.

THOMAS G. WHITE, M. D., Beaufort, S. C., says: "I am much pleased with my experience with Abbey's Effervescent Salt. I have used it in dyspepsia, accompanied with acidity of stomach and flatulency. It is a most agreeable laxative, and will be found very efficacious and adapted to our summer climate as a pleasant refrigerant."

DR. N. B. SIZER, New York, says: "I am glad to say I find Abbey's Salt an excellent laxative and antacid. It gives good results invarious forms of Dyspepsia and Constipation. I have always thought that the effervescent salines were not half as well known and used in this country as they ought to be."

DR. EDGAR C. JOYCE, New York City, states: "With the continued use of your excellent preparation, I have never seen anything near its equal. My patients tell me that Abbey's Salt is the 'grandest thing' that they have ever used."

THE HORSE, PLOW, AND FODDER.

At recurring periods of time, about current with local or general elections, we hear a good deal to the effect that the horse which pulls the plows should have the fodder. In agriculture, this is axiomatic, in politics demoralizing. This principle applied in politics fully would set aside patriotism for selfishness, and would substitute the hope of personal reward for the actuating sense of duties of citizenship. It is a vicious, abominable principle. It is the essence of Tammany politics, from which may North Carolina be delivered.

Literally, the horse that pulls the plow must be fed, not as a reward for his labor—who is foolish enough to believe it—but in order that he may be able to pull If the advocates of giving the "fodder to the horse that pulls the plow" in politics mean what their words stand for, they must mean, then, that the offices should be bestowed as a stimulus to get citizens to perform their public duties. Comfortably resigning ourselves to the application of this principle, we turn over public affairs to a set of men who are perfectly satisfied to pull the party plow for the sake of getting the party fodder. They become interested in the question of how to capture the fodder rather than the welfare of the country. The great body of citizens of the country go on with their private business, the public business drops into the hands of a set of men who are after the fodder, and they get it. We have the fodder horses in all the little towns, in the states, in the nation. They are professionals. In the towns and counties we have the little rings who live wholly on the fodder. They subscribe heartily to the doctrine that we have first conceded. In the states we have a little larger set, and so on. Let this doctrine once be challenged and all the little and the big crowds too, who regard it as the fundamental tenet of the Declaration of Independence, will rush to its defense in patriotic fervor.

We hear a good deal of imperialism. We should like to see a crusade started against the imperialism of the politician. He is the worst rough rider this country has to fear. When the great body of citizens turn the country over to the professional politician, as they appear to have done, and largely divorce themselves from the administration of public affairs, there'll be a rush of enough horses towards the plow to keep it going, but they will be altogether scrubs, and very hungry ones too, much more interested in pulling along the shortest path towards the fodder than in how well the plow shall be pulled. Patriotism and gratitude for our government and the desire to continue it uncorrupted ought to make some of us willing to pull the plow, and mark this, those who care more for the pulling than for the fodder will be found in this class. We are sick of the scrubs.

There is hardly doubt that one of the most tremendous strikes ever seen in the country is on foot in the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania. The men claim that they cannot live at the prices paid when they are compelled, as they are, to buy their supplies from the company stores at exhorbitant prices. Another grievance is that the operatives require for a miner's ton a large number of pounds more than they sell for a ton. The operators claim that they pay as much as they can afford to. The fight is on, and will end, of course, like they always do, in the defeat of the men, right or wrong.

The most base and foolish assertion yet made in this campaign is that put out by the Republicans that the Democrats have aided and abetted the coal strikers of Pennsylvania in the hope that it would counteract McKinley's claim of the "full dinner pail."

MORE OF MR. GRAY'S REPORT.

extra lift and friction head in the force main. No survey of this creek has been made, the distances and drainage area being given as only approximate.

Reedy Fork creek is a large stream of water about eight miles from Greensboro, and according to a report submitted to our city some nine years ago, has a daily flow of 38,000,0000 gallons. There can be no question about an ample supply of water being secured from this source, and were it not for the heavy expense of laying a force main from this creek to the city the project would be worthy of a more careful consideration. The expense of laying a 16 inch force main from the creek to the city would be $100,000 in addition to the cost of a pumping station and machinery. The water, like all other supplies near the city, should be filtered to relieve it of the suspended matters so common to the waters of the southern and western states.

POPULATION AND CONSUMPTION OF WATER.

The population of Greensboro in 1880 was said to be 2,500; in 1890 5,000 and in 1900, 13,000.

By plotting these quantities and extending the line of growth for 30 years in the same ratio, the population for 1910 would be 26,000, 1920, 42,000 and 1930, 60,000, or more than four times its present population.

It seems quite doubtful whether the population of Greensboro will continue to increase in this exceedingly large ratio in the future. During the next 30 years it is probable that it will grow more steadily. Thirty thousand may be considered a conservative estimate of the population for the year 1930.

Not having any records that are reliable of the quantity of water which has been used in your city since the works were built, it will be necessary to estimate the quantity that is required at the present time as well as what will be required for the future.

The consumption of water at the present time is said to be at the average rate of 1,000,000 gallons per day, which amounts to about 80 gallons per capita for the entire population, but as only about one quarter of the population is provided for now, the actual consumption of water per capita for those using it must be much greater.

It is generally considered that 100 gallons of water per capita per day is an ample quantity, and any amount in excess of this quantity may be charged to waste and leakage. With this rate of 100 per capita, a population of 13,000 will require 1,300,000 gallons per day, and for the population in 30 years, 3,000,000 gallons will be required per day. These quantities represent the average amount for 24 hours, but there will be times during the day when the rate of consumption will exceed these average quantities for short periods of time by at least 25 per cent. and it will be necessary in designing a system of works to provide for this fluctuation.

RAINFALLS AND YIELDS OF WATER SHEDS.

Partial records of rainfalls have been kept in Greensboro from 1892 to 1895, and since 1895 more complete and accurate records are available.

The mean annual rainfall for the last four years is 44.28 inches and the minimum rainfall during this period was 37.88 inches, occurring in 1898.

Not all of the rainfall finds its way into the stream. Part of it is taken up with vegetation and a portion evaporates from the surface of the soil. In the summer months usually only a small percentage reaches the stream, while in the winter months larger percentages can be depended upon.

Naturally the soil in your vicinity is rather hard and firm, allowing the rains to reach the streams quickly, causing the run-off from the water shed to be more variable than it otherwise would, providing the soil was more open and retentive.

In deciding upon a water shed for a city's supply, the minimum yield of the stream should be considered rather than the average, for the reason that the maximum consumption of water may occur at the time of minimum yield.

Without an ample storage capacity in the water shed we are obliged to depend upon the natural every day flow of the stream, which, at its minimum, ought not to be less than the quantity required for the maximum use of the city; but with an ample storage capacity the minimum flow of the stream can be less than the daily consumption, as water can be stored during the wet months and used throughout the dry months.

As a rule, July, August and September are the three dryest months of the year, although there are exceptions to this rule. The average monthly rainfall for these months, from observations during the past four years, was 12.21 inches, and if we could depend upon this amount each year, there would be no question but that the North Buffalo creek would furnish an ample supply of water for several years, or until the population had increased to 20,000; but there are years when the rainfall will not equal the averge, as for example, in 1892 when it only amounted to 6.75 inches. In a dry year like 1892 or in 1898, there would be days when the flow in the stream would probably not exceed 1,000,000 gallons per 24 hours in the North Buffalo creek. The drainage area of South Buffalo creek being 50 per cent. larger than that of North Buffalo creek, might yield 1,500,000 gallons per 24 hours, and with the addition of Ryan Creek 2,000,000 gallons could be expected. It will be remembered that these quantities are the minimum flow and would probably be confined to short spaces of time.

Goes to the Roads for Beating His Sweetheart.

John Gorrell, the negro who got drunk and beat his sweetheart Sunday, has been sentenced to the county roads for 30 days. The Mayor first fined him $20 and costs, but changed the sentence to a term on the roads. John has the reputation among the police officers of being a bad negro, especially when drunk. He has been in court several times for beating the same woman.

Preparing to Avert Trouble in the Future.

Mr. John M. Dick is digging a well at his steam laundry which is believed will furnish an abundance of water to run his business. The well is ten feet in diameter and will be walled in with brick and cement. Water was struck today at a depth of 18 feet, but the well will be made 15 feet deeper.

Mr. Dick has been paying about $300 annually for water. This will be saved by utilizing the well.

closed, the committee was very much behind. There were a number of urg ent bills to be met, for which I was responsible. I borrowed, upon the endorsement of a friend, from the Commercial and Farmers' Bank, of this city, one thousand dollars and gave it to the committee as my contribution to the campaign.

Painful as it is to do so, I deem it proper to make this statement about my private affairs that the people of the State may see how unjust and cruel are the charges with which it is being sought to injure and destroy my reputation.

During the last three years I have given to the Democratic party a year of my time without any compensation, having actually borrowed money to pay, in part, my expenses while engaged in this work, and I have also given to it this year more than one seventh of my net fortune.

I have done this ungrudgingly and if my State should ever again fall back into the horrible condition from which it has been rescued, and again wish my services, I shall not answer not now, but at a more propitious season. I have not made, and do not intend to make any demands upon the party for these sacrifices from its adherents, but no party exigencies can require the sacrifice of a man's character. Neither can I believe that any man's candidacy for office will be promoted by the assassination of an opponent's character.

During the last three years the fusionists have heaped upon me a degree of slander and vituperation which perhaps never before fell to the lot of any man in the State. I have borne these assaults with patience, counting myself fortunate that I was considered worthy to suffer in the name of the cause for which I was struggling. This abuse has been directed against me, not only as an individual, but I have been denounced by the enemies of Democracy for everything done by the Democratic party which has not pleased them.

It now seems that these charges made by the Fusionists have been revamped and are being circulated to my detriment by men in my own party, because, forsooth, I am in the way of the ambition of their favorite. So be it, I am not the only victim. Others, yea thousands of others, have felt the mailed hand of a power which brooks no opposition to the accomplishment of its purpose, and which, though it was not always so, has recently become in this country a power mightier than "the man" himself.

There is no skeleton in my closet. For three years the enemies of Democracy, with evil and vicious eyes, have turned the searchlight of inspection upon my life and character. In the midst of it all I have stood defiant, asking no quarters and giving none. I ask none now, but there is a difference between injustice from foes and injustice from friends. The former may be regarded with indifference: the latter is sharper than a serpent's tooth.

My Democracy is without qualifications. I stand straight, square and flatfooted for every principle and declaration in our platforms, State and National, and for Mr. Bryan, the great leader of our hosts.

There is a well defined and largely successful movement in certain parts of the State to organize, against me and in favor of one of my opponents, certain interests and influences which, though usually acting with the Democratic party, are not in sympathy with and actually hostile to some of its principles and policies, and more or less unfriendly to our candidate for the Presidency. I have no apologies to make to any one for my advocacy of the principles of the Democratic National platform, nor for my earnest admiration and support of Mr. Bryan. I stand for these principles separately and collectively; not for a part of them, but for each and every one of them. I am glad that my position in these regards is fully understood in North Carolina, because I do not want to secure any man's vote upon false pretences.

Very truly yours,
F. M. SIMMONS.

Public school No. 3, at the Normal College, will will open Thursday, September 20, at 9 o'clock. All new pupils will please report at the building on Wednesday morning, at 9:30, when they will be examined and graded.

INDOOR BUTTERFLIES.

How Little Sturgis, a Convalescent Youngster, Was Entertained Royally by His Mother.

When Mamma Leavitt came home from a call at the high school teacher's she found Sturgis wishing that there was no such thing as measles.

"If it hadn't been for measles I don't believe I should have taken any notice of some butterflies I saw this afternoon," cried Mamma Leavitt, gayly. "And I shouldn't have found out all about them so we could have some ourselves if it hadn't been for measles."

"Flying butterflies," said Sturgis, doubtfully. "They don't fly in the winter. Were they big ones?"

"No," said mamma, "but they were as big as they ever would be."

"Were they alive?"

"No, but they were lively," answered mamma.

"What were they made of?" asked the little boy.

"Paper," replied Mamma Leavitt. "Let's have some." So she took some thin white paper and cut out two little butterflies like Fig. c, and through the dark spot in each head tied a piece of sewing silk about six inches long.

"You might get your water colors and have these two butterflies any color you choose," said mamma.

That seemed a good idea to Sturgis, and he colored them both light yellow. "They are not so pretty as when they are other colors, but they look more summerish when they are yellow," he said.

When Sturgis had colored the butterflies, mamma tied the loose ends, about half an inch apart, to a long pencil and balanced the pencil on a tall glass vase (Fig. b). There were two lifeless butterflies swinging in the air.

"You said they would fly," said Sturgis.

"They will," said mamma. "We must wake them up. Run and get a warm, dry lamp chimney and a silk handkerchief and I will get my fountain pen or a stick of sealing wax, or a rubber handled knife."

Mamma looked and found some sealing wax. She made sure that this also was warm and dry.

"I am glad I have this," she said, "it is really the best thing. Now you rub the glass with the silk and I will rub the sealing wax with my woolen dress skirt. Now hold your chimney about an inch from the butterflies. See them fly to it?" Then Mamma Leavitt held the sealing wax almost two inches from the butterflies, and to Sturgis' astonishment they flew to the wax.

"They've gone to eat sealing wax," he cried in surprise. But almost before he has said it they flew back to the glass. Then back to the wax they went. Three or four times they flew, then they seemed tired and settled down to rest, hanging under the pencil.

"Let us give them some more life," said mamma.

So they rubbed the wax and the chimney and sure enough the butterflies were just as lively as ever.

"What makes them fly, mamma?"

"It is electricity," answered mamma. "We make it when we rub the wax and the glass."

"What is electricity?" asked Sturgis.

"Now you have asked me something I can't answer," said Mamma Leavitt. "I don't know, nobody knows. Perhaps some time wise men will find out, but until then the best thing for us is to find out what it will do."—Orange Judd Farmer.

Why the Senators Laughed.

The lieutenant governor of a certain state, who, by virtue of his office is president of the senate, astonished the legislators the other day by a peculiar ruling. A senator was speaking, and, having referred to "the gentleman from ——" the president checked him. "I want to call the attention of the senate to one thing," he said, after rapping sharply with his gavel. "The senators will address each other as senators, not as gentlemen. The senators," he added, gravely, "are senators, not gentlemen." Then every man in the senate chamber began laughing, but it was not until after adjournment that the lieutenant governor saw the joke.

Saved by a Stray Dog.

A wildcat is a feline no one cares to meet, but two schoolgirls in Wisconsin had that unpleasant experience. Their only weapons were their school bags, and with these they whacked the brute enough to keep him off for a time. But they must have eventually been torn, if not killed, had it not been for the arrival of a stray dog, at the sight of which the cowardly cat fled with a scream of baffled rage.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRAH—DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments, doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air. blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure ond so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardrer, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

WINE OF CARDUI

How a Woman Suffers.

HOWELL, IND., Nov. 26.
I will always praise Wine of Cardui. It has done me more good than all the medicines I have ever taken in my life. Please send a book about female diseases to the ladies whose names I enclose.
Mrs. MINNIE STODGHILL.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

It isn't necessary for a woman to give particulars. When she says she has "female troubles", other women know what that means. It means days and nights of endless suffering. It means headaches which no tongue can describe. It means that terrible bearing and dragging down in the lower abdomen. It means agonizing backache, and shoulder ache, and arm ache, and aches in the lower limbs. It means nerves on edge—the blues—despondency and loss of hope. It means debilitating drains that the doctors call leucorrhœa. It means martyrdom—sometimes even death seems preferable. And still Wine of Cardui will utterly put those diseases and pains to rout. It has cured thousands of cases when nothing else on earth would. To the budding woman, to the bride, to the wife, to the expectant mother, to those going through the Change of Life, this Vegetable Wine is a blessing.

FRITZ BEHAVES WELL.

Philadelphia Dog, Born in a Cemetery, Has Attended More Than Two Thousand Funerals.

Fritz is not a prepossessing dog by any means. He is not a thoroughbred, and he is not well groomed, but in his own line there is not a dog in the whole country like him. That line is graveyards, and Fritz is a "graveyard" dog. He has been to over 2,000 funerals, and will probably see as many again before he himself joins the great majority of dead canines.

Six years ago Fritz was born in the American Mechanics' cemetery at Twenty-second and Diamond streets. The exact place of his birth was under the little chapel where the last prayers are said over the dead, and in this melancholy atmosphere Fritz grew up. His brothers and sisters, three in number, were not so fortunate. One died; the other two were either stolen, or, unable to stand the depressing influence, ran away. Fritz' mother also disappeared, and he was left alone. Since then his disposition has been melancholy.

Perhaps from disappointment, perhaps from a morbid taste imbued by his solitary life, Fritz at two years old began to attend funerals. No one objected, his behavior was above reproach, and gradually the picture of the little black and white dog walking mournfully along in his favorite position just behind the coffin grew familiar. Now it has come to pass that no funeral is complete without Fritz. Just as soon as the chapel bell rings, no matter where Fritz is, he rushes to the spot from where he knows the coffin will be taken. However excited he is, he never barks, and, except when he is outside the cemetery, he never barks at all.

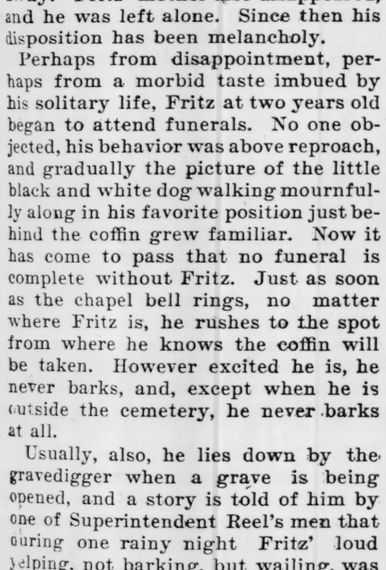
Usually, also, he lies down by the gravedigger when a grave is being opened, and a story is told of him by one of Superintendent Reel's men that during one rainy night Fritz' loud yelping, not barking, but wailing, was heard continually. No one paid any attention to it, but next morning Fritz was found beside a grave which had been made the afternoon before and which had caved in during the night on account of the rain.

The best thing about Fritz is that no matter whether it is a $25 funeral, with just a hearse and no carriages, or a $50 funeral, with 20 carriages, he shows just as much respect for the dead in either case. He is not a snob, by any means.—Philadelphia Times.

The Old Man's Secret.

They tell me I am handsome yet,
And the ladies, bless them, say:
"Do look at him; the dear old boy
Really grows younger every day."
And when asked: "How at your age,
Are you so free from ills?"
My answer always is the same—
"Because I promptly pay my bills."
—Chicago Daily News.

NO MOON IN SIGHT.



Little Girl—Oh, mamma, I don't like to go to sleep with the moon shining in my face.

Mamma—Oh, that's all right, dearie, that's your papa's head on the front porch.—Chicago Daily News.

Poisonous toadstools resembling musrooms have caused frequent deaths this year. Be sure to use only the genuine. Observe the same care when you ask for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. There are poisonous counterfeits. DeWitt's is the only orginal Witch Hazel Salve. It is a safe and certain cure for piles and all skin diseases. Howard Gardner.

"Are the spots that come before your eyes always black?" inquired the attending physician. "No, doctor," responded the patient; "sometime they are red—especially when hearts are trumps."

To prevent consumption quickly cure throat and lung troubles with One Minute Cough Cure.
Howard Gardner.

Cholly—"Gwacious! Here are five pennies inside the band of my hat, I wondah how they got there." Miss Kostique—"Probably you've been changing you mind."

His Idea of Courage.

"Women often show more true fortitude than men," remarked the thoughtful man. "They are the brave ones, after all."

"You are right," answered Mr. Meekton, "perfectly right. Why, I once knew a woman who stood up in a debate and told Henrietta she was mistaken!"—Washington Star.

Wayside Communings.

Saymold Storey—I reck'n I'd better go an' warsh my face afore we tackle the next house.

Goodman Gonrong—Wat fur?

Saymold Storey—To disguise m'self. I've been there so often fur cold victuals the woman knows me.—Chicago Tribune.

A Seasonable Hint.

Ned—If you don't mean business with Miss Flite be very careful when you stroll through the fields with her.

Fred—Why? There's nobody about.

Ned—Perhaps not; but the corn has ears and the potatoes have eyes.—Town Topics.

BRAVE MEN FALL.

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents at C. E. Holton's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

DEATH OF DR. BODENHEIMER.

Buried Near Kernersville Yesterday--High Point Will Have a Military Company. Building Preparations--Personal.

Correspondence of The Telegram.

High Point, Sept. 18.—Dr. L. I. Bodenheimer, who has been confined to his room for several months with a complication of diseases, died yesterday morning at 4 oclock, of dropsy. He was 69 years, 5 months and 17 days old. For several years he practiced medicine here, was a minister of the Primitive Baptist church and at one time published a paper called the Naked Truth. The remains were carried by private conveyance this morning to Saint's Delight, near Kernersville, for interment. Deceased leaves a wife, three sons and three daughters, all of whom live here except the eldest son who is practicing law in Dobson. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the community.

Your correspondent returned this morning from a needed vacation of several days. On reaching home he found there had been some irregularity in correspondence and distribution of papers, all of which we beg our readers to please excuse this time.

Tonight there will be another meet- to permanently organize a military company. About sixty names have been secured and the organization gives promise of strength. The company will be known as the High Point Rifllemen.

Miss Cornelia Roberson, one of the teachers of the graded school, went to her home at Guilford College yesterday on account of sickness.

Messrs. Turner & Walton have given the contract for another two-story brick structure on the site on which one was recently burned.

Mr. Groom is also clearing away the debris where his three-story brick building stood, with a view of building again if he does not sell the site.

Mr. A. B. Hart, who has been teaching a dancing class here, is confined to his room with typhoid fever.

G. H. Kearns & Bro., are moving into the storeroom which is being vacated by Will H. Matthews & Co., clothiers.

Attend the meeting tonight in the rooms of the Business Men's Association. A military company will be organized.

Dr. A. P. Staley has returned from a business trip north.

Miss Cutler, Miss Venetia Smith's milliner last season, will arrive in a few days to be with Miss Smith again.

Miss Helen Snow, who won the Converse (S. C.) scholarship at the graded school here last term, left this morning for Spartanburg to enter that institution.

P. W. Eshelman is suffering with his throat this week. He has tonsilitis.

An Old Farm Implement.

A farmer from the southwestern part of the county was here today exhibiting a plow which is said to have been in use more than one hundred years ago. The old implement was made entirely by hand and almost entirely of wood, even the standard being a big but shapely block. The point was of wrought iron. Though made of the best white oak, the old plow is about to fall to pieces. It is showing its age. It will probably be on exhibition at the Central Carolina Fair.

ADS SAVE TIME

A city postmaster says that people out of town use him as an information bureau, asking for what should be, but is not, in the advertising columns of the newspapers. One man wrote that he needed a patent lawyer, but could find no ad of one, He wrote to several lawyers whose names he had learned, but they were not in that line. From a friend in town he got the name of a firm that was in the city directory, but when he wrote it had gone out of business. There were at least a dozen patent solicitors in the city, yet because they did not advertise he lost his time and was put to much trouble.
